

Admits He Chopped Wife to Death

Van Nuys, Calif., Nov. 16.—(UP)—John Thomas Honeycutt told police he hacked his fourth wife to death with a butcher knife, because she was "a little fat." Honeycutt admitted his control over the sale of fresh vegetables and fish was in a state of complete collapse and allied headquarters immediately ordered into operation the Japanese plan to abolish price controls of vegetables.

This is expected to increase the price of the vegetables, but Honeycutt said he kept them under black market control. He said he had been in substantial gains in perishable goods for city dwellers who have been unable to obtain vegetables.

The 25-year-old auto mechanic said at his arraignment yesterday on murder charges that he killed Mrs. Florence Honeycutt, 37, because she had intimate relations with his step-father, Frank Harris, 60.

Detective L. E. T. Johnston said Harris vigorously denied the charges.

Parts of the woman's dismembered body were strewn about the kitchen when police arrived Monday night to arrest Honeycutt, who was calmly washing the blood from his hands. Mrs. Honeycutt's mother, Mrs. C. M. Harris, was found crumpled paralyzed with fear in a rooming house.

"I'm a murderer," he told police then. "I killed my wife and did it for business of years ago."

Hungry Japs in Northern Province Riot

Tokyo, Nov. 16.—(UP)—Twenty-three hundred hungry residents of the northernmost Japanese island, Hokkaido, seized trains from Asahikawa, storeshouses and mills on two successive days.

The food rioters split into small bands for looting, and the Asahikawa police reported today, some 1,000 persons looted and burned down a number of stores.

The rioters, who were armed with clubs and stones, were reported to have been in the first part of the riot for many weeks, but government officials said they were concerned over the possibility of violence in the foodless, fuelless island.

Youth Sullen Over Probe of Love Flight

Los Angeles, Nov. 16.—(UP)—Sunny, 17, sullen today over the fact that his sister, Virginia, 15, had been arrested for a love flight.

Instead, a sullen Sunny (Sunny is the name of the boy) was being interviewed by reporters in the crowd gathered outside the Los Angeles County Jail.

His companion on a week's trip to northern California, attracted Eleanor Roosevelt, 24, wife of a soldier stationed in Japan, was hunted on a warrant charging her with contempt of court for failing to appear in court.

Walter O. Reynolds said he was unable to locate her last night, but had been informed she would surrender today.

Earlier, she said: "Sunny, I love him very much and I'll be faithfully loyal to him. I can't marry him. But Sunny told the judge that I was a 'crazy' girl, and instead was all mixed up."

There were other pertinent comments from Sunny.

Mrs. Mildred Wiscarew, Sunny's mother, I have trouble keeping her out of trouble.

Sunny: Please let me stay home, judge. I won't do it any more. Judge Scott: Not on my life. Sunny: You mean I have to go to jail? Can't go to juvenile court because of the foodless, fuelless island?

He Beholds Vision, But Won't Talk

By ROBERT RICHARDS

New York, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Young Joseph Vitello's reported vision of the Virgin Mary in a Bronx lot and what she told him remained the nine-year-old boy's secret today.

"I won't tell you what she told me," he shouted at reporters last night. "She told me not to tell."

"She told me that she was the Virgin Mary," he said. "She told me that she was the Virgin Mary."

It was the fifth night since he claimed to have seen a vision of the Virgin. Approximately 30,000 people gathered in a drizzling rain in the streets, surrounding the rock-cluttered vacant lot to watch him pray.

"The 'Blessed Lady' told him that she was the Virgin Mary," he said. "She told me that she was the Virgin Mary."

Young Joseph prayed before an image of the Virgin Mary, which he had brought with him from his home in Italy.

Through his sister, Mrs. Theresa Campone, the boy said, after he was returned to his home, he was definitely would not return to the lot again. "It was his last night," he said.

"He will not disobey orders," Mrs. Campone said. "He will not disobey orders."

He appeared tonight and told him that he was not coming any more. I did my work, and you should answer not coming any more.

The boy stood beside his sister, alternately smiling and scowling.

Chichi Vitello, a husky nephew who always escorted Joseph to the lot, explained, "It is very much I think they look pictures which he has seen. He has seen the Virgin Mary. He is very much."

"He will return to school tomorrow," Mrs. Campone said.

The night began like the previous nights since the boy reported his vision. He was in the lot, and he was in the lot.

At about 10 o'clock, the boy was escorted by his sister, Mrs. Theresa Campone, to the lot.

Joseph, led by the sister, entered the lot, and he was in the lot.

Prosecution demands of the United States, that the name of Alfred Krupp, the industrialist's eldest son, be added to the list of defendants.

The court, which is presided over by the American judge, Judge E. A. Tamm, said that the trial of Krupp would be postponed until after the trial of the German industrialist, Alfred Krupp.

THEY OPEN THE DOORS TO THE WESTERN PACIFIC

FROM Tokyo to the Tasman Sea, AP men have reopened old bureaus, started new ones and deployed their staffs to speed the news of half of the world's peoples to Associated Press newspapers everywhere.

The Western Pacific never again will be the Mysterious East. In Tokyo, Glenn Babb, AP's Foreign News Editor, is putting the finishing touches upon this extensive news coverage in the Western Pacific for this and hundreds of other AP member papers. Babb formerly was chief of bureau in Tokyo and Peiping, Richard Massock, pre-war chief in Rome, is directing developments in China. John Grover has taken charge in Manila, James Hutchison in Hong Kong, Ralph Morton, Australasia chief of bureau, is expanding AP's new services "Downunder."

The entire AP staff—much larger than before the war—is especially recruited for its rich background in Asiatic and global affairs. A few of them are pictured here. Look for this staff's stories in this newspaper.
